Library and Computing Services: Sally Horsfall-Eaton Centre, Ryerson University

This handout is for GBC students in the following programs at the Sally Horsfall-Eaton Centre, Ryerson University:

- Early Childhood Education (C100)
- Early Childhood Education Collaborative Degree (C118)
- Early Childhood Assistant (C105)

Students have access to library resources and services as follows...

Databases

George Brown College (GBC) provides students with access to over 104 electronic databases and 10,000 E-Books accessible from computer workstations in the Academic Resource Centre (ARC) located in the Sally Horsfall-Eaton Centre, Room 677, as well as from GBC Library Learning Commons on both campuses, and remotely (e.g., from your home). See below for “Off Campus” instructions.

Databases are available from the main page of the Library Learning Commons website located at georgebrown.ca/llc

Off Campus Access to Databases

To access the databases, from the GBC Library website (georgebrown.ca/llc), under “Start your research”, click on the “Articles & Databases” tab, then select your subject from the drop down menu and the database list will appear. If you would like an A-Z listing of the databases, click on “Databases A-Z”. From the list of databases, select one by clicking on the title.

At this point, if accessing the databases from off campus, you will be prompted to login. Your User ID is your Student/Staff number and your PIN is your STU VIEW password. Once logged in, you will be directed to the database search screen.
Library Help
Click on the "Help" button in the upper right corner of any GBC Library webpage for more assistance. You can also get help with your reference questions using our online chat service AskOn (georgebrown.ca/LLC/contact/livehelp).

Print Books and Periodicals, and Reference Services at the Ryerson Library
You have access to the Ryerson University Library for the use of the University’s book, periodical, videotape, and reserve collections. You may borrow materials in accordance with policies and procedures in force at Ryerson. Reference staff is available to assist you with questions and with one library orientation session in your first year. Due to licensing restrictions, you do not have access to Ryerson’s databases.

You are required to adhere to all policies and procedures of the Ryerson University Library (library.ryerson.ca), including the payment of fines and replacement fees. Failure to pay an assessed fine or fee will result in the withholding of college transcripts and diplomas.

DVD Collection at the Sally Horsfall Eaton Academic Resource Centre
George Brown College maintains a collection of DVDs in the Academic Resource Centre.

Open Access Computing
You have access to 27 computer workstations in the ARC (Room SHE 677). These workstations are connected to the George Brown College network, thereby giving you access to George Brown College’s electronic database collections. These computers are available for research, word processing, e-mail, and Internet access.

Study Space
The Academic Resource Centre provides approximately 20 study stations for your use.
